Former Sheriff's Employee Sentenced in Bribery Case

A 25-year-old former custody assistant with the Sheriff's Department was sentenced today to two years and six months in jail after pleading to accepting a bribe and possessing a controlled substance in a jail, the District Attorney's Office announced.

Remington Orr earlier admitted he accepted a $700 bribe on Feb. 13, 2012, to smuggle cocaine into a jail to sell to inmates, said Deputy District Attorney Fernando Guzman with the Justice System Integrity Division.

Orr worked for four years as a civilian employee before he was arrested at the downtown Men's Central Jail on Feb. 13, 2012.

He was sentenced by Judge Norm Shapiro.
